Data Methodology

1. How does HubSpot collect the customer data used in this report?

We obtain customer data by collecting information from customers who interact with us through our websites or use HubSpot's subscription services. The details of what we collect, how we use the information, how we share it, and how customers can manage their data are all outlined in our Privacy Policy.

Our customer experience data is derived from aggregating information from thousands of HubSpot customers. For specific sample sizes and details regarding the criteria used to include customers in each chart or statistic, please refer to the corresponding chart description or statistic footnote.

2. What types of customer data are included in this report?

The data presented in this report can be categorized into can be categorized into three types:

- a. Personal Data: This refers to the information defined in our Customer Data Processing Agreement. We collect data when customers fill out web forms, interact with our websites, subscribe to a HubSpot blog, sign up for a webinar, request customer support, create or modify user information, set preferences, or provide any other relevant information to access or use our Subscription Service.
- b. Usage data: This includes metrics and information about how customers use and interact with the Subscription Service. It encompasses details such as the most frequently used product features, the creation and closure of objects (e.g., deals), and the frequency of triggering certain features (e.g., workflows) in their account.
- c. Research Data: This refers to customers who have given their consent and taken part in a market research study conducted or commissioned by HubSpot. In these studies, the data has been collected by asking customers using the product questions related to their business's performance, such as time saved, revenue growth, and other relevant metrics.

3. Where can I learn more about the data used in this report?
